a) I have used passive white space to create a margin between the body of the page and the edges of the screen, and to separate the different sections of the page. I have added a margin between the navigation bar and the header section, and between the different columns on the page.

I have used active white space to highlight the main heading and subheadings on my page. For example, I have added a large margin around the main heading, and I have added a smaller margin around the subheadings. I have also used active white space to separate the different sections of the page. For example, I have added a large margin between the "More" section and the contact details section.

b) Three features of my webpage that demonstrate that I have defined the look for the user are consistent use of typography, use of colour and use of images.

c) Three features of my webpage that demonstrate that I have designed the feel for interaction are use of hover effects, use of large buttons and use of clear language
